Excerpt from A Weaver of Dreams In The Garden I was walking in the garden, when the dew was on the rose, When the dawn was bathed in glory, and the World in deep repose. There I met him by the lilies, in the radiance of the dawn, And I knelt in adoration as the day came pacing on. And his presence seemed to gather, all the gleaming rays of light, All the sun glows of the morning, and the moonmist of the night, All the aureole tints of sunset seemed about him to abide, I could see the cruel nail prints and the spear wound in his side. I walked with him down the winding path, and the lilies bowed and swayed. Alone with the man of sorrows I watched the birth of another day, And he stretched his hand and touched my brow and consecrated me, To work that men might know his word, might hear his voice and see. He promised me that I should touch life's harp to many chords, That...
