I am standing on the ragged edge of despair as to what to say--and so far as making a speech is concerned, I almost wish I was dead.--( ) I might say, I am no orator as Brutus was; but what is the use of getting off an old saw like that, when everybody can see the fact for themselves. I have been physically unable to make a speech for nearly fifteen years, and it passeth all my understanding that, after listening to the best dinner speeches in response to toasts that I ever heard--such wisdom and eloquence and humor from our greatest soldiers--those prominent in the councils of the government and famous in the halls of Congress, and those inhabiting the high places of our own State, I say that after this, you should call upon my insignificant...
